Abstract:

Women are still deprived from every aspect of life in our society. Legal protection is very much needed to improve their socio-economic situation. And specifically female sex workers are totally marginalised and lead a terrible life, without having the opportunities to enjoy even the basic needs. Hence legal protection is further more important for the women of this profession. This paper tries to throw light on different existing national and international laws, acts, charters, declarations, agreements, conferences, etc. for protection on women's right, with a special reference to those for sex workers' protection.

Introduction:

According to the World Health Organisation (WHO), "Health is a state of complete physical, mental and social well-being and not merely the absence of any disease or infirmity." ### Abstract

Aberrant rise in c-section deliveries and associated cost have raised concern to achieve the development goals. Given this, India has launched various schemes to directly serve the mother and newborn and to protect the households from financial hardship for childbirth. Using nationally representative unit level data, the article aims to explore the extent of c-section delivery in India and to capture the financial burden on the households due to c-section deliveries. It is observed that the c-section delivery has increased substantially in almost all Indian states. Both rural and urban sector of the states have reported alarmingly high c-section rates. Urban-India reports around 35% c-section cases and the figure for rural region is 19%. However, out-of-pocket expenditure has decreased marginally in the public facilities for c-section. Surprisingly, in many states poorest class pays much higher than the other expenditure classes even in the public facilities for c-section. Additionally, in the public sector, a considerable proportion of the households are spending substantially high share of their annual consumption expenditure to purchase medicine and diagnostic tests in the public facilities. Therefore, information asymmetry about the government schemes and related informal expenses needs to be addressed for better outcome.

Abstract: Vidyasagar is considered as the pioneer of humanism. Vidyasagar was a major social reformer and spearheaded the Bengal Renaissance era. Vidyasagar aimed for the overall social, educational, moral and cultural development of the people. He strived for his entire life to eradicate various social evils, uplift the conditions of the people of lower sections of the society and spread the light of education among them. His efforts to elevate the social position of women and his continuous efforts to help them achieve equal positions in the society are exceptionally noted.

Keywords: Humanism, Individualism, Renaissance, Rationalism, Education.

The period 1450-1600 is generally considered to be the period of Italian and European Renaissance. Humanism was a part of the philosophy of the Renaissance era. According to humanists, the goal of a person should not only be proficient in a few fields or to master various fields, but also to achieve true humanity to become an ideal person. To achieve this goal, the attainment of education is an indispensable criterion. Human society and life, the principles and ideals of survival, the free will of the individual, and the relationship of the world with the individual—all are attached with modern humanity.

The legacy of social reform movement started by Ram Mohan Roy in the Renaissance of Bengal was carried on by Vidyasagar. His sole aim was to ensure the overall welfare of the people and arise the feeling of social awareness among them. Just as Ram Mohan Roy played a leading role in establishing equal rights of women in the society by abolishing the practice of "Sati", similarly, Vidyasagar also embarked on the struggle for the establishment of fair rights of women in the society through social reforms. Vidyasagar wanted to enhance the position of widows in the contemporary society by forming a movement for their rights. He also tried to eradicate polygamy and child marriage.

The most accomplished work of Vidyasagar's life was his contribution towards the enactment of the Widow Remarriage Act, the largest social movement in Bengal in the nineteenth century. At that time, various corruptions and many evil religious practices were indulged in the society of Bengal. Earlier the widow remarriage attempts were made in one or two places in Bengal before Vidyasagar, by some other social reformers but the attempts failed. Vidyasagar was the first to succeed in this endeavour. His main objective was to awaken the conscience of the people towards widows through this reform movement. He
